1. Introduction

As part of the student wellness and life skills development initiative, a Health & Hygiene Awareness Session was held on 2nd May 2025 for Level III and IV students. The purpose of the session was to promote awareness about bodily changes during puberty, the importance of personal hygiene, the concept of personal safety, and the value of body autonomy and self-confidence among young learners.

2. Objectives

The key objectives of the session were:

- To emphasize the importance of hygiene and undergarment care.
- To differentiate between good touch and bad touch in an age-appropriate manner.
- To educate students on body autonomy and identifying trusted adults.
- To encourage modesty, confidence, and self-expression among students.

3. Methodology

- Resources Used: LED Screen and USB-supported visual aids
- Session Format: Interactive lecture supplemented with visual presentations, followed by a question & answer segment
- Topics Covered:
 - Physical changes during puberty and related hygiene practices
 - Understanding safety boundaries and types of touch
 - Encouraging students to speak up and seek help from trusted adults
 - Emotional and social aspects of growing up

4. Key Discussion Points

Category	Subtopics
Personal Safety Boundaries	• Good touch vs bad touch • Body autonomy • Trusted adults

5. Observations

- Students displayed strong engagement and curiosity throughout the session.
 - Several students contributed by sharing relevant examples and asking thoughtful questions.
 - A noticeable gap was identified in awareness regarding basic hygiene and body safety, highlighting the need for sustained education on these topics.

6. Recommendations

- Organize similar awareness sessions regularly to reinforce key messages.
 - Distribute take-home guides and visual learning materials to involve parents.
 - Establish a safe and confidential channel for students to report concerns.
 - Integrate hygiene and personal safety education into the school's formal health curriculum.

7. Conclusion

The Health & Hygiene Awareness Session proved to be impactful in addressing vital aspects of student well-being and personal safety. It created an open and respectful learning space where students felt comfortable expressing concerns and absorbing critical knowledge. Ongoing efforts and parental involvement will be key in continuing this positive momentum.
